Biography

Jack Stein is a Graduate Assistant with the TCU Football program, working with the special teams unit. A former student assistant, Jack has built a strong foundation in game planning, sideline operations, film breakdown, and player development. His coaching approach emphasizes discipline, communication, and attention to detail.

Jack is currently pursuing his Master's in Strategic Communication at Texas Christian University, with an expected graduation date of December 2026. He is passionate about using clear, intentional messaging both on and off the field to build trust, drive performance, and develop athletes.

Guided by the principles of relentless effort, servant leadership, and Kaizen (continuous improvement), Jack brings high energy, a team-first mentality, and a commitment to daily growth. He is focused on building a long-term career in coaching and sports leadership while continuing to learn from the mentors and athletes around him.

Statement

As a Graduate Assistant for TCU Football's special teams unit, I bring hands-on experience in game planning, sideline operations, and player development. My time with TCU has sharpened my football IQ and reinforced my passion for coaching and leadership. I'm driven by a strong work ethic, attention to detail, and a commitment to helping athletes grow on and off the field. I value learning from experienced coaches and constantly seek opportunities to expand my impact in the sport.

Career

Assistant Coach at TCU

As a Graduate Assistant with TCU Football, I support all aspects of the special teams unit, including opponent film breakdown, weekly game plan preparation, sideline communication and substitution management, and scout team coordination. I assist in evaluating player performance, organizing practice drills, and ensuring efficient operation during both practices and games. I also collaborate closely with the coaching staff to implement strategy and provide input on game-day adjustments.

This role requires strong attention to detail, high energy, and a team-first mentality. I consistently seek opportunities to learn, grow, and contribute to a winning culture both on and off the field.

Feature

2022 Fiesta Bowl Champions

As a player at TCU, we won the 2022 VRBO Fiesta Bowl.

PRINCIPLES

- Servant Leadership: My role is to empower athletes and support the staff in any way needed—no task is too small.
 - Kaizen (Continuous Improvement): Small, consistent progress builds long-term success. Every day is a chance to get better.
 - Team-First Mentality: Individual success follows when we commit to the greater good of the team.

PLAYER DEVELOPMENT

Marcus Viramontes

Golden West College | Football

A highlight of my coaching journey has been the development of Marcus Viramontes—a former backup safety at Golden West College with no long snapping experience. Recognizing his raw potential, I worked with Marcus to teach him the fundamentals and techniques of long snapping from the ground up. Through consistent reps, film study, and individualized coaching, Marcus not only became the starting long snapper but also earned a transfer to a four-year program at Whitworth University. Watching him grow and take ownership of his role has been a rewarding example of what player development can achieve when trust and effort align.
